

Pax Christi International's Privacy and Data Protection Policy

(revised May 2018)

What information does Pax Christi International gather and track?

In principle, access to the information available on or via the website of Pax Christi International does not require any personal data to be supplied by the user. 'Personal data' means any information relating to an identified or identifiable natural person; an identifiable person is one who can be identified, directly or indirectly, in particular by reference to an identification number or to one or more factors specific to his or her identity. However, in order to use certain online services, for example to subscribe to Pax Christi International's e-newsletter and general mailing list, or to send an information request via the 'Contact Us' form on the website, an individual may be asked to supply some information about himself/herself, such as contact details (name and e-mail address) when filling in a form. Occasionally we may ask an individual to provide further personal information such as date of birth, ID/passport number, nationality, contact address in connection to a particular Pax Christi International event (conference, workshop, seminar) he/she may wish to attend.

Any personal data we have regarding an individual can be requested and shared with said individual at any time. We will correct, revise, remove or delete any personal data at the request of said individual at any time. We will give individuals explicit choices as to how they wish us to use their personal data and for what purpose. (For example, an individual can choose what kind of emails she/he wants to receive from us.)

It is convenient, quick, easy and accessible for individuals to opt-out of any use of their data. For instance, if they wish to opt-out of our electronic newsletter, we will always have an opt-out button on every newsletter for them to access.

Purposes of collecting personal data

Pax Christi International uses personal data as specified by individual users. Individuals may sign up to receive electronic communications from us for a variety of services (newsletters, fundraising appeals, action alerts, general information, event registration, surveys, etc.) Such data will only be used for the purpose it was originally obtained for at the consent of the individual.

Personal data will only be used for the purpose for which it is specifically given. For example, when signing up to receive our electronic newsletter, that contact information will only be used to receive the electronic newsletter. It will not be used in any fashion outside of the use for which it was originally given, unless consent for other uses is expressed by the individual.

Internet Address Information

We use IP addresses, browser types and access times to analyse trends, administer the site, improve site performance and gather broad demographic information for aggregate use.

Surveys

We may occasionally ask users to fill out optional surveys and/or questionnaires. These surveys/questionnaires ask for demographic information, which is not personally identifiable to the user, and other information about computer use.

Cookies

The Pax Christi International website may use cookies to enhance its functionality, to help improve its performance and to provide users with a better user experience. Users have full control over what cookies are set on their devices through the Pax Christi International website and can delete cookies that have already been set at any time.

Protection of Personal Data

The policy on the protection of individuals with regard to the processing of personal data by Pax Christi International is based on the General Data Protection Regulation (GDPR) (EU) 2016/679, a regulation in EU law on data protection and privacy for all individuals within the European Union. Pax Christi International will collect personal information only to the extent necessary to fulfill a precise purpose that will be clearly specified to the user. Pax Christi International will not disclose any of personally identifiable information without permission. Nor will it reuse information a user provides for a purpose incompatible with the original purpose. Pax Christi International will not divulge a user's personal data for direct marketing purposes, nor will it disclose this information to third parties, except where required by law (for example to government bodies and law enforcement agencies). Data collected will be kept for no longer than is necessary for the purposes for which it is collected. We only retain an individual's data for as long as they wish to partake of the services for which they have requested access. Individuals may opt-out on their own or ask us to remove their personal data at any time. Any individual concerned has the right to obtain access to and rectification of his or her personal data stored by Pax Christi International. To exercise one's rights or to obtain any further information, please contact us at hello@paxchristi.net.

The Pax Christi International website provides links to other internet sites, including Member Organisations' websites. Pax Christi International has no control over these sites; nor does it have any knowledge about their respective privacy policies. For any questions/concerns regarding these websites' privacy policies, we recommend contacting them directly.

Copyright

The Pax Christi International website includes data and multimedia items such as texts, drawings, graphics, logos, icons, images, audio and video material, photographs and programmes which are protected by the provisions of national and international law applying to intellectual property. These textual data and multimedia items are the exclusive property of either Pax Christi International or their specified authors and beneficiaries. Reproduction of textual data and multimedia items which are the property of Pax Christi International or of third parties and for which the Pax Christi International holds the rights of use is authorised for non-commercial purposes only provided that the source is duly acknowledged. For further questions regarding the use/reproduction of particular information, pictures and/or audio-video material on this website, please contact us at: hello@paxchristi.net.

Disclaimer

Pax Christi International's goal is to keep this information as complete, accurate and up to date as possible. If errors are brought to its attention, Pax Christi International will take all possible steps to make any necessary corrections without delay. Pax Christi International cannot guarantee that information from external sources contained on this site is reliable or up to date. The information on this site may link to external sites, including Member Organisations' websites, over which Pax Christi International has no control and for which Pax Christi International can accept no responsibility.

Contact

If you have any questions about this privacy and data protection policy, our site's practices and services, or dealings with Pax Christi International, please contact us:

Pax Christi International asbl

Rue du Progrès, 323
B-1030 Brussels
Belgium

Phone: ++32 (0)2 502.55.50

Fax: ++32 (0)2 502.46.26

Email: hello@paxchristi.net